Low Fidelity Prototype:

For the cart page, the user is always informed about the total cost of their order with the sidebar on the right. No matter how many products are in the cart, the right side of the page stays in the same place such that you can always view the total and check out. The left side of the page shows the user the product(s) and options they have selected. This serves as a reminder to them of what exactly they are buying. Users would have the option from here to change quantity of a product or remove it from the cart entirely.
